

UPDATE: New QEW Underpass Open to Northbound Hurontario Street Traffic

December 19, 2025

Construction Progress Update

With grading, new pedestrian sidewalks, paving activities, and the installation of lighting complete, crews have finished the final touches of a major engineering achievement in Mississauga South: the new QEW highway underpass. Beginning December 19, 2025, the underpass is now ready to safely accommodate northbound traffic along Hurontario underneath the highway.

The concrete underpass was built and pushed into place using hydraulic rods, an innovative construction methodology known as "box-jacking". This was the first time that this methodology was used in Ontario.

Otherwise known as the "QEW Push Box", the new highway underpass was designed and constructed to make room for the construction of the LRT guideway. With northbound traffic now permanently diverted through the "Push Box", the lanes that were originally dedicated to northbound traffic will support the movement of the future light rail vehicles (LRVs) underneath the highway.
