To build the future Ontario Line Queen Station, crews will be conducting pile drilling to install structural walls. This work will be done in two sections: piling will start first at the West site near Queen Street West and James Street. Piling work at the East, on Queen Street between Yonge Street and Victoria Street, will take place at the future date. Work is expected to begin as early May 13, 2024 and will be ongoing until March 2025.

What is piling?

Crews will be drilling to install structural walls - also known as secant pile walls - to support the underground excavation of the Ontario Line station at the future Queen station.

- A secant pile wall is a type of retaining wall used to secure the soil and ensure water tightness prior to excavation.
- The process consists of drilling a series of holes and filling them with concrete to create overlapping (secant) piles that form a continuous structural wall.
- Some of the piles are further reinforced with steel beams.
- This work is performed prior to excavation to prevent ground settlement.
